EMOZU

EMOTIONAL ZOO · 1 MIN READ

A meltdown should never be the first sign.

A soft band that warns a parent minutes before an autistic child's meltdown, at home.

In short: in clinics, a wrist sensor predicted episodes 3 minutes ahead. Nobody has tested it at home.

Concept image, not a real photo.

THE PROBLEM

Parents find out too late.

A parent learns about a meltdown when it starts. The child often can't say what is wrong.

Hunting for triggers 47%

Our tagging of 409 public parent posts. Source

THE SCIENCE

A sensor can see it coming.

In 4 hospitals, a wrist sensor predicted episodes 3 minutes ahead. AUROC 0.80, 70 young people.

Imbiriba et al., JAMA Network Open, 2023 · 10 min: Kartha et al., 2026, preprint · curves are schematic

THE GAP

Nobody has tested it at home.

99 children in all published studies, all in clinics or classrooms. Zero at home.

2019 · hospital	20
2023 · 4 hospitals	70
2026 · classroom	9
At home	0

WHY NOW

Clinic devices are gone. AI got cheap.

The research bands left the market. AI is cheap now. The missing piece is home data.

- 2013 Q-Sensor ends
- 2019 First model
- 2023 70 children
- 2025 Empatica E4 ends
- 2026 Emozu home data

WHERE WE ARE

The pilot runs. Testing can scale.

1 home pilot running now

6 families approved for the next stage

135 children with a diagnosis in a community we reach

IL · US clinics through our advisors

ADVISORS

Advisors on board.

HARDWARE

FLIPPER

The Flipper Zero team consults us on the device.

1M+ Flipper Zero devices sold worldwide (TechCrunch, 2026)

CLINICAL ADVISORY BOARD

Israel and the US

clinicians with access to hospitals

WHAT'S NEXT

Our own band, a real study, the FDA.

Prototypes our own small batch

Study with clinical psychiatrists, 30 to 50 children

FDA Pre-Submission

In 6 to 9 months. Looking for clinicians and families for the beta.

emozu.kids

More data and findings on our website

emozu.kids · research and sources · y@emozu.kids · LinkedIn

Yury Sakhonchyk, founder · Yerevan. Emozu is not a medical device and does not diagnose or treat. Renders and concept images, no real children or data.

LinkedIn